Reflection

Walking sticks have become increasingly popular today for a variety of purposes: to support people with mobility challenges; to assist pilgrims and hikers in climbing safely; to clear brush from a densely forested trail; to feel for obstacles and to test for depth in streams—all actions that help people to move forward more easily.

Jesus' admonishment to his disciples to divest themselves of everything that would make journeying difficult also invites to question: What might we need to let go of and clear out in order to move forward? What stands in the way of God at work in our lives? Holding on to the walking stick of prayer and discernment, how might our lives become more deeply centered and in balance?
